Global Public Investment is an idea whose time has come. The solutions proposed by the GRI approach are not limited to the financial sector but can be adapted to any sector and across the world. The GRI has demonstrated that global public investments can be leveraged to create a global public investment markets (GPI) that need to be activated. The Global Consultation has demonstrated strong support for GPI globally, making it a cornerstone of the Addis Ababa Action Agenda and a key part of the development of the climate finance architecture. This will require both technical and political momentum to build a global public investment market.

In this context, the EWG-GPI makes the following Recommendations to the individuals and all decide — to become a reality, institutions and governments need to cocreate new modalities with all relevant stakeholders — especially those from the Global South, those at community level, and all select the most appropriate solutions, agree processes and technical details and build political support.

1. Adopt GPI principles into all new and existing global funds and initiatives

As we move forward, the EWG-GPI makes the following Recommendations to the individuals and organisations that need to collaborate, working together to create new ideas and ways to make GPI a reality.

- Participate in the Consultation in a way that is important to you, especially if you are an individual or organisation from the Global South, those at community level, and the civil society.
- Be in the frontlines to cocreate new modalities with all relevant stakeholders — especially those from the Global South, those at community level, and all decide.
- Build an inclusive GPI Network to engage and mobilise more individuals and organisations.
- Establish GPI budget lines in government spending plans
- Establish GPI principles at the core of global health financing
- Incorporate GPI efforts into reinvigorate climate finance
- Engage in major UIR (and other) processes
- Evolve Regional Public Investment mechanisms
- Link to other global, regional and national campaigns, especially on inequality

In short, we must now begin a new phase to build and promote GPI.

As the work of our EWG comes to an end, we encourage people and organisations everywhere to push forward the GPI proposal and add new insights, particularly focused on the core principles — at the same time staying aligned to a broad theory of change. Because Global Public Investment is an idea whose time has come. As the work of our EWG comes to an end, we encourage people and organisations everywhere to push forward the GPI proposal and add new insights, particularly focused on the core principles — at the same time staying aligned to a broad theory of change. Because Global Public Investment is an idea whose time has come.

1. Establish GPI budget lines in government spending plans

GPI should be at the heart of current efforts to prepare for the world for the peak global commitments. The impact of climate investments on social and economic systems amounts to a development opportunity that we cannot afford to ignore.

- In order to build a movement to support GPI adoption, it will be necessary to enable cocreation mechanisms to complement GPI.
- Establish GPI budget lines in government spending plans
- Establish GPI principles at the core of global health financing
- Incorporate GPI efforts into reinvigorate climate finance
- Link to other global, regional and national campaigns, especially on inequality
- Engage in major UIR (and other) processes
- Evolve Regional Public Investment mechanisms
- Build an inclusive GPI Network to engage and mobilise more individuals and organisations.

As we move forward, the EWG-GPI makes the following Recommendations to the individuals and organisations that need to collaborate, working together to create new ideas and ways to make GPI a reality.

- Participate in the Consultation in a way that is important to you, especially if you are an individual or organisation from the Global South, those at community level, and all decide.
- Build an inclusive GPI Network to engage and mobilise more individuals and organisations.

In short, we must now begin a new phase to build and promote GPI.

As the work of our EWG comes to an end, we encourage people and organisations everywhere to push forward the GPI proposal and add new insights, particularly focused on the core principles — at the same time staying aligned to a broad theory of change. Because Global Public Investment is an idea whose time has come.